Mr. Robson as Tony Lumpkin is never tunny with the aid of Goldsmith. The situations in the play do not inspire him. He has lar more laith in Robson and his own ability to extract humor from vocal tricks and personal eccentricities. That would be all very well were the author of " she Stoops to Conquer" Mr. Hoyt or Mr. Gratton Donnelly or Mears. Sims and Raleigh. But Goldsmith is a classic. We have most of us studied him at school. He is surrounded by traditions, even in this irreverent age. The Miss Hardenstie of Mrs. Robsen is simb inrly defective. As the barmaid Mrs. Robson looks like a Dreaden china comic opera girl You can almost hear her singing that "Adonis" number, "Yes, we are the charges" she plays the part just as Miss Annie i mier would do, like a robust kitten. Mrs. Hobson is charming; she has a pleasant voice and a comely lace, but she has no idea of Mus

" She Stoops to Conquer" is one of the be-old comedies that is still pleasant to s century, and it is not tedlous. Mr. Robson b staged it artistically. In fact, John L. Wood erson appears to be far preferable as a stay manager than as an actor. As Diggery be a unnecessarily loud and bolsterous. ALAN DALL
